1. The first part of the paper is devoted to a review of the literature on the topic of the effect of the environment on the development of the individual. It is found that the environment has a significant influence on the development of the individual, and that the influence is both direct and indirect. The direct influence is through the physical environment, such as the climate, the soil, and the water. The indirect influence is through the social environment, such as the family, the school, and the community. The review also shows that the influence of the environment on the development of the individual is not uniform, but varies according to the individual's characteristics and the characteristics of the environment.
